2022 Year in Review

The Dragon Divas demonstrated that a full and active life is indeed achievable after a diagnosis of breast cancer through the sport of dragon boating and with activities to connect in supportive and fun environments.

On and off the dragon boats, we presented multiple and diverse opportunities to build and maintain member strength and endurance, as well as prepare for the paddling season. In 2022, training options were offered in more locations than ever before. Off-season, members participated in a variety of weekly strength and fitness training online or in-person.

Every paddling season opens with a traditional Blessing of the Boats. In 2022, we gathered on a bright day with a singing bowl meditation, readings, and a flower ceremony to remember those we paddle for and those still challenged by breast cancer.

During the season we put our muscles in action and built our best rhythm: one heart, one beat, one boat! Coach Michael Lee guided twice weekly dragon boat training, supported by our assistant coaches and steers. We also hosted a weekly social paddle for those focused on the recreational and support aspects of paddling together. We hosted our second annual 2-day paddling camp in mid-June to further develop our individual and team skills. We introduced the 19 new members to the excitement and techniques of dragon boating, including a "new members" practice at the start of the season and 1:1 technique training before weekly practices. There was strong commitment to the season among the Dragon Divas, evidenced by two boats of 20 paddlers each for nearly every practice.

The Dragon Divas traveled across the state and nation to showcase our paddling skills, share our thriving survivorship, and celebrate each other. The Dragon Divas were fierce competitors at four dragon boat festivals, and brought home gold in San Diego (Breast Cancer Survivor Division), silver in San Diego (Women's Group B Division), and bronze at the Superior Festival (Women's Division). Just as important were the relationships developed, enhanced, and extended through our time on and off the boat.

Social opportunities in 2022 included a variety of online and in-person connections. Among them, members learned the art of clay sculpture, expanded their critical reading skills with a book club and gathered to socialize and support each other during coffee hours and bonfires.

The Dragon Divas worked to increase awareness of options for increasing emotional and physical health and wellbeing after breast cancer. Our community outreach efforts took us to the University of Minnesota Survivorship Conference, Breast Cancer Education Association, and a dozen health-care clinics. We also collaborated with community organizations to support breast cancer patients with particularly challenging personal situations.

Dedicated team members are essential for this volunteer-led organization. We thank them, their families, and friends for support. Tax deductible financial contributions augment member dues to help fund land and water-based training, supportive activities, and educational programming. An Oktoberfest is our main fundraiser. Members and sponsors also participate in flower sales, a BBQ drive-through among other events (see next page for contributors).
